THE DRAMA RETURNS TO CAPE ANN

By A——. M——.

In looking over the Cape Ann activities for the season, we find that if we wish to keep our readers properly in touch with all that is going on about the Cape, we shall need to install, in our pages, a permanent dramatic department. It is a long time since any Gloucester paper has devoted a definite space to things theatrical. The old CAPE ANN ADVERTISER may have done this long ago, when notices appeared on its front sheet announcing that Charlotte Cushman was fulfilling her annual engagement at the City Hall, or, later, that Edwin Booth would appear there as "Richard the Third," or Barret give his wonderful performance of Yorrick.

For those were the days when the whole country, not merely New York, had drama, and plays were built for a national audience and not for the questionable taste of Broadway.

The Broadway theatrical menu has however had some beneficial results. In striving, as it claims, to please the majority, it has banded the minority together in self defence against the endless revues, musical comedies, bed-room farces and melodramas, and has driven them, in their desire to get at something of a little better dramatic quality, to produce their own plays. Hence the "Little Theatres," which have sprung up in the last few years in all the larger cities, and hence the awakening of dramatic interest in many of the smaller towns which the present theatrical touring system has effectually cut off from all good drama. It is interesting to observe what this has effected in the community of Cape Ann.

Gloucester has always boasted an unusual amount of dramatic talent which, sometimes under the direction of Mr. Fred Tibbets and sometimes under that of Miss Sally Shute, the organizer and director of the Players Club, has given every winter one or two first rate performances.

It is difficult, however, to do much in the line of production without an adequate stage, and this was provided two years ago by Mr. and Mrs. William Atwood in their "Gallery on the Moors." To the Atwoods belongs the praise of inculcating the Community Theatre idea on Cape Ann and under the able direction of Miss Florence Cunningham, the available talent of Gloucester and the summer colony was gathered into an efficient acting group. In the first season two sets of plays were successfully presented, and Mr. Louis Kronberg, assisted by Miss Lucy Conant and Miss Lilius McClean, directed an outdoor ballet, "The Greek Festival," one of the most beautiful things of its sort seen on the North Shore.

The fame of this charming theatre spread rapidly, and the succeeding summer of 1919 saw many new actors in the east drawn to the community by their interest in the stage.

This summer we find the "Community Dramatic School," of which a full account has already been given, established under the direction of Miss Cunningham and Mrs. Florence Evans of the Boston School of Public Speaking. Associated with them is Miss Virginia Smith of Rochester, as teacher of both stage and ballroom dancing.

Rumors of all this interest in the stage and its arts reached the ears of two of our best known marionettists, Miss Lilian Owen and Mr. Tony Sarg. Miss Owen has made her headquarters at the Community House in Gloucester and from there she will go out with her family of dolls and the pigmy stage and their scenery, to engagements about the Cape and in neighboring towns. Mr. Sarg will come later for a performance at Manchester.

So Gloucester, which has always been the Paradise of painters, bids fair to become a dramatic center as well, and it behooves the Cape Ann Shore to run a calendar of the coming events. A resume of the season reveals at the first glance:

Scenes from the Life of John Murray

THE CALL OF THE CUT WORM

Dunsanesque

By John Doe, Jr.

As I was walking one day, in a gentle autumnal rain, thru the outskirts of the city of Babulkoond, I came upon a little Death. Now I could perceive, thru the gray rain, that this was not the Great Death that slays men, but one of the Lesser Deaths, so I was not afraid and I approached him gently.

He was a very tiny Death, even a baby one, and he was weeping baby tears on a stone. At every sob, his bones shook convulsively and his little ribs clacketed together. So I had pity and went up to him, asking whose death he was. He looked up quickly, as a child does when he is caught weeping, and I observed that the blue flames in his eye-sockets, with which he saw at night, were nearly drowned by his tears. They sputtered slightly.

"I am the li-little Death of the e-c-cut-worms," he sobbed in his high voice, and fell to weeping more desperately than before. I feared that he might shake to pieces, as they say the Death of the Dodos did, when he found he had been too greedy. So I patted his smooth skull and asked him why he wept on a rock by Babulkoond.

He hid his face closer to the stone and sobbed afresh, but I bent down, and I think I heard him say, "They have g-g-given me too many e-c-cut-worms to k-k-kill. My nerves are all g-g-g-gone."

Then I observed his fingers, and I saw the bone was worn white and polished at the tips, as are the hands of the brown men of Surang, who work with jade all day.

And so I left him, sobbing alone on his stone, and as I walked away, I could hear fainter and more faintly thru the whispering rain, the clattering of his ribs and it was even as the irregular clicking of distant castanets. In my heart I had pity for those who toil in the gardens that lie toward the mountains of Yuana, for I knew there would be no Death to call their cut-worms wailing away.

IN THE INTEREST OF CAPE ANN

THE DRIVE IS ON FOR A LEGION BUILDING

Col. A. Piatt Andrew has been instrumental in securing for the use of the local Legion Post, the Old Town Hall, so-called, situated at the junction of Middle and Washington streets. Designs have been drawn for its remodelling for the purpose, retaining the motif of the Colonial architecture with pillars, and the whole when completed will constitute a most pleasing and dignified structure. The cost of these changes will be $25,000 and a "drive" for the purpose of securing these funds is now in full force. The potential membership of the Post is 1900. Contributions to this end are invited.

If you think anything is due those boys who braved the terrors of the trenches during the Flander's winters and who fought at Chateau Thierry and saved civilization at the Marne and Belleau Wood, who suffered the unutterable agonies of poison gas and other atrocities, who, on the sea, during one of the coldest winters in history, kept clear the ocean lanes for our transports and shipping, regardless of the ever present menace of the undersea boat and death in the icy waters of the North Atlantic—and all this to make the world a decent place in which to live—if you think these boys deserve the most we can do for them, then come across with the least!

Gloucester sent some 500 skilled seamen at the very start into the naval service and this type of man is not turned out in a day. You never can tell! You may need the services of these men again!

Let us help to provide a roof under which those boys can band together and keep alive the spirit and fellowship which won the War.

(Advt.) City Marshal.

CONCERT AT EASTERN POINT

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Hall of Eastern Point gave a delightful musicale on the afternoon of July 13th to over one hundred guests. English and French songs were charmingly rendered by Mrs. Roger D. Swain (Margaret Bradley) with Mrs. Dudley B. Fitts at the piano. Among those present were the Dr. Lowell Cabots of Beverly Farms, the John Clays of Bass Rocks, Mrs. Raymond of "The Ramparts," Mrs. Jack Raymond, Mrs. Pollard, Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Miss Elizabeth Hammond, Mrs. Murray Kay, Mr. and Mrs. Nodelman, Dr. and Mrs. James Knowles, Col. A. Piatt Andrew, and many others of the North Shore summer colony.

Mr. Richard Hammond is entertaining, for the week end, Mr. Allen Turner of New York, a young pianist and composer of promise.

A SHORT SMOOTH MOTOR TRIP TO THE SHOPS OF MAGNOLIA

The constant sea breezes that blow over Magnolia Point make this resort one of the coolest on the North Shore. Here, over fifty years ago, "pioneers" from neighboring cities came with their families to enjoy the out-of-door life offered by this little fishing town of Kettle Cove.

How changed it all is now! Even its original name is forgotten and scarcely a seine or dory to be sighted! However, the same beauties that attracted Louisa Alcott and others of the "old school," survive, and Magnolia has flourished. The name of Magnolia, derived from the wild shrubs that once grew in profusion in the swampy lands to the north, was later adopted and few people know that there once was another name.

A miniature Newport, as it is often called, with its gay colonnade and shops of every variety, its comfortable hotels, its tea houses and out-of-door swimming pool, Magnolia, indeed, leaves little to be desired in the way of city luxury or sea side pastime.

The wedding of Miss Isabella Wadsworth, daughter of Reverend and Mrs. Charles Wadsworth, Jr., of Philadelphia, and John Charmion Zinsser of "Locust Wood," Hastings-on-the-Hudson, New York, last Saturday afternoon in Union Chapel was the event of the week. Simplicity marked the decorations, garden flowers and semi-tropical ferns making a most attractive bower, beneath which the bride and groom were received in the large Club house living room of the North Shore Swimming Pool.

The bride made a quaint and charming picture in her mother's bridal gown.

Dinner parties given in honor of the bridal party, which included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wadsworth, 3rd, the Misses Peggy and Ellen Zinsser, sisters of the groom, Mr. Zinsser and Miss Wadsworth, were held at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Costello C. Converse of Boston, the Samuel S. Stevens of Brookline, the William H. Coolidges of Boston, and the William H. Coolidges, Jr., (Eleanor Cole) of Boston. The closing event was a dinner party at Del Monte's given by the bride's father and mother, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Charles Wadsworth.

Miss E. C. McVickar of Providence, R. I., who was welcomed back to the cottage colony after an absence of several seasons is occupying the Thornberg cottage on Norman avenue.

Miss McVickar has as her guest the Reverend and Mrs. Decker of Providence. Miss McVickar is a sister of the late Bishop McVickar.

Mrs. J. A. Schafly and children of St. Louis, are spending another season at Magnolia. Mrs. Schafly's mother, Mrs. C. D. Lyon of St. Louis is with her for the summer.

A party which enjoyed a foursome on the links of the Essex County Golf club Sunday included Misses Wheeler, Hussey, Anderson and Bernoef, all guests at Hotel Oceanside. Golf, always a popular sport on the North Shore, appears to have more devotees than ever and the links both at the Essex County and Rockport Country Clubs are dotted with enthusiastic players.

Mrs. Jacob Hagar of Weston, is the guest of Miss Emily Gray who is a season guest at Hotel Aborn.

The estate of the J. D. Cox's of Cleveland, is well fortified against the recurrence of a flood tide such as Magnolia experienced last autumn. A great sea wall, that has been under construction for a year or more, is now completed and the house is ready for occupancy. The estate, which adjoins that of the late Mrs. H. M. Curry of Pittsburgh, is situated on Norman's Woe Road and was formerly owned and occupied by the late Dr. Morrill of Beacon street, Boston.

The Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening dances at Hotel Oceanside, are as popular as ever and as one former guest was heard to remark seem to grow more attractive each season.

Among those noted on the floor the past week were the Misses Suzanne Anderson of Detroit, Eleanor Wheeler of Washington, Helen and Priscilla Rhodes of Brookline and Miss Helen Hussey of St. Louis.

Another artist to join the Magnolia colony is Bryant Baker, the English sculptor. Mr. Baker formerly was of the Eastern Point Colony.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Di Rosa of Boston (Maud Scudder) were rather late in arriving this season but according to their custom will remain until the latter part of November. Mr. Di Rosa is the Italian consul at Boston.

Mr. James Green who has been in Washington on business for the last week joined Mrs. Green at the Perkins cottage, one of the Oceanside group, the first of the week.

All who knew Mrs. Benjamin Curtis Tower, formerly Dorothy Potter of Philadelphia, were grieved to hear of her sudden death a few weeks ago at Cohasset. Mrs. Tower with her parents, the Charles A. Potters of Chestnut Hill, Pa., were always season guests at Hotel Oceanside.

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING

JIMMY'S IDEA

Genius is so inconvenient! Peggy and I have decided that is all that's the matter with her brother Jimmy! I suppose it isn't so bad as some other things a Freshman might take to at college but it's harder on family and friends, because he carries it right into the home. Jimmy says it is his fate to be misunderstood and that his light is hidden under a new type of bushel every day so that he spends all his time excavating the little bonfires. That may be—but just the same I agree with his Aunt Lida when she told him that if he must indulge his literary cravings in public—he should have the decency to keep his family affairs sacred. Jimmy merely murmured loftily "The world is my copy! Art before family! And anyhow, I don't see where my sacred family affairs have anything to kick about. Everybody knows you have to have a cook and if you can help suffering humanity by a new formula for finding and keeping same—you should swallow as much family pride as you can digest, and go to it!"

It all happened the other afternoon when Peggy and I ran over to Magnolia to do some shopping. Manahan was having an opening with all the newest sport things at his jolly little place on The Arcade and I wanted one of those smart tan woolen capes with a fringed collar. And Peggy was on the trail of an iridescent evening gown—a little peach of emerald hue which Mlle. A. Tobis grew.

Jimmy and Phil, who were playing in the golf tournament at the Essex County Club, were to call for us on their way home, and after dining a la Chinois at The Royal Restaurant which has four American chefs and four Chinese chefs we were all going to the movies. This was entirely Jimmy's plan, because he is very keen on Anita Stewart who is now playing at the North Shore Theatre in "The Fighting Sheperdess." But Jimmy never turned up. Phil appeared, full of rage, and said that Jimmy lost his match thru default just as he was in top hole form with every chance for a cup. And when he telephoned to ask Jimmy didn't he know the tournament was on, that youth replied that an idea had come to him and he couldn't play golf with literature waiting on his doorstep.

When we got home we were all too disgusted to speak to Jimmy but he insisted on showing us his article and said that THE CAPE ANN SHORE had promised to publish it. Here it is:

THE COOK CHASE

"Baseball is popularly supposed to be our national sport. But, those, who like myself delve deeper—know that more and more, the national sporting tendency finds expression both indoors and out—in the primal pastime of the Chase—more particularly to be classified as "The Cook Chase."

This is a form of hunting, in vogue with all classes,—from the household which imports a blue-ribbon chef (only to deport a red-letter comrade) to the man who having wooed his quarry has won, for better or worse, a legal hold on the indispensable!

The psychology of finding and hiring a cook has so far never been scientifically treated, tho it affords research matter for which the Senate might well vote an appropriation.

Not being a housekeeper—I have kept my impersonal aloofness intact—yet—being an eater—I have a direct interest, and because of this happy combination, I feel myself especially fitted to contribute some valuable testimony:—

"When my Aunt and Sister first came to Gloucester this season, all sorts of rumors rified about. We heard that the town was as Cook-less as the North Pole. We heard that our friends were divided into two classes—those who were still looking for a cook, and those who were trying to get along with an electric stove and Self-help. The local employment bureau had taken a job at the 5 and 10 cent store, and would answer the telephone, after hours, with the patient remark that there was no one to employ. And the food in most of the houses of one's friends was said to be not what it used to be. "Wanted a Cook" has become the slogan of the day.

WORD IN SMARTNESS

This abysmal situation was brought to my immediate attention, one evening, by a curious distasteful quality in our dinner for which my Sister Peggy offered the explanation that Suzette, her maid, had gone to Boston to look for a French Dentist with a bad tooth and Aunt Lida had gone to Boston to order some rugs from Rowe and Hurley, it was the waitress' day out, and she, Peggy, was doing the entire cooking. When I suggested to Peggy that she would be a fine cook if she didn't burn everything so thoroughly, and that I advised her for this reason to stick to salads and boiled eggs, the poor darling burst into tears and wailed something like this:—"It is all right for you to sit there and snicker when you've never forgotten that peas have to have water to boil in and they were such nice fresh ones that McPherson-Sims sent up especially for me—and the lovely lobster I got from Frank E. Davis! you don't know how it feels to advertise for one and not get a cook and they are the back bone of family existence, and I can't see where the country is going to when its back bones are deserting it like that!"

A beautiful girl in the weeps always melts a man—even if it's only his sister. There and then the artist in me rose to the surface and inspiration was born:—

"Cheer up Peg old Top. I'll get you a cook!"

"You? Have you met any lately?"

"No but I will—just leave it to me."

"One must know how to manage these little affairs, you can do anything once if you know how to advertise. But you should have something to offer."

"Well, I have" insisted Peggy. "I offer the highest wages and her own Ford and room with bath."

"And so do all your friends. That is not the way. What you want to feature is something different. Make a picture—Local color! Ah, I have it!" And I rushed for a pencil and furiously wrote the following:

WANTED A COOK
FOR A
BLUE AND WHITE KITCHEN
NONE OTHER NEED APPLY
Address:
P. W. care CAPE ANN SHORE.

"You just try that," I told her. "I happen to know that The CAPE ANN SHORE goes to press on Thursday and is out on all the news stands on Saturday afternoon, so that will give us chance to tabulate the answers before Aunt Lida returns on Monday."

EASTERN POINT

COMMODORE and Mrs. John Greenough of New York, are again domiciled in their cottage on Eastern point boulevard.

C. R. Hinchman and family of Philadelphia, have arrived at "The Willows" for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Gillette of New York, are at their summer home on Grapevine road.

Seth K. Ames and family of Melrose, are again occupying "Sunset Rock" cottage.

Colonel A. Piatt Andrew spent all last winter at Eastern Point. Colonel Andrew is very much engrossed in the activities of the American Legion of which he is the senior vice commander of the state in addition to being the commander of the local Legion post. During the winter two volumes, in which were recounted some of the stirring incidents of his four years service in France, came off the press, and constitute a valuable addition to the historical literature of the war.

CECELIA BEAUX

*Portraiture of Heroic Figures of The World War on Exhibition in Paris.
To Be Placed In National Gallery*

Word was received from Paris this week that Miss Cecelia Beaux of Eastern Point, has placed on exhibition at a Paris gallery her portraits of ex-premier Clemenceau, Cardinal Mercier and Admiral Beatty.

THE SHORE stated last season that she with John C. Johansen, Douglas Volk, Charles Hopkinson of Manchester, and Edmund C. Tarbell, had been selected by a national committee comprising Mrs. H. H. Pratt, J. P. Morgan, Mr. Frick, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, and Mrs. Crocker, to paint portraits of the Allied statesmen and war leaders. The pictures mentioned have been presented to the United States Government and will be hung in the National Gallery at Washington.

Miss Beaux's portraits of these interesting men are having an international success.

BASS ROCKS

MATTERS social have been quiet following the curtain raiser of the season's activities—the North shore championship tourney at the Bass Rocks club last week.

Dr. and Mrs. James H. Knowles of Philadelphia, are again at "Lowestoft" for the season.

Carlton Ellis and family of Montclair, N. J., will occupy the Wonson cottage, Atlantic road.

Miss Edith Corbett of Detroit, has the W. Jay Little house at Grapevine road.

JANET'S GARDEN

The unusual atmosphere of Janet's Garden, Gloucester, brings the cream of Cape Ann society about its colonial falles—some of which have been in the family for three generations. Among those who were noticed there this week were Mrs. Sherman Kingsley of Cleveland, Mrs. Walter Camp of New Haven, Mrs. Traversers of New York.

ANNISQUAM

INTEREST in yachting is as keen as ever this season. The opening races have been closely sailed and some clever yachtsmanship is displayed by the younger sailors on whom will fall the work of maintaining the sport which now centers exclusively at Annisquam as far as Cape Ann is concerned.

Miss Elinor Young of Denver, an ardent Republican—chairman of the Republican women of Colorado and vice chairman of the Men's Republican club and a member of the committee of one hundred women of Colorado—is spending a week with Mrs. Alpheus Hyatt at "Seven Acres."

Prof. Barry MacNutt of Lehigh University and family of South Bethlehem, Penn., have arrived at their cottage at Hermit Ledge.

William L. Jelly and family of Salem are at their Norwood's Heights home for the season.

Bradbury Huff and family of Manchester, N. H., are at their River road cottage.

Frank H. Howes and family of Newton are among the cottage colony here for the season. Their home is in the Annisquam Heights section.

Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Houghton of Boston, have come to their cottage, "Lengthwise," for the season.

Clarence A. Hight and family of Brookline, have come for the season to their cottage.

James Guiler and family of Newton Center, opened the Wigwam, Norwood's Heights, for the season early in June.

George C. Andrew and family of Brookline, have arrived at their summer home, the Hall cottage Cambridge avenue.

Felton Bent and family of Haverford, Penn., are occupying the old Homestead, near River road.

Quincy Bent of Steelton, is occupying the Mellen house.

Joseph N. Damon and family of Newton, are among the arrivals. Their cottage is in Cambridge avenue.

Fred L. Cunningham and family are again installed in their Annisquam summer home.

Mrs. Lyman Crow of Irvington-on-Hudson, is at her summer home, the Putnam cottage, Leonard street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Chester Chase of Boston, will spend the summer at their Bayberry Ledge cottage.

Rev. Davis W. Clark and family, have arrived for the season at their Arlington street cottage.

J. Rush Green and family of Somerville, are at their cottage, Washington street.

Arthur Winslow and family of Boston, have taken the Adams cottage for the season.

Benjamin A. Smith and family of the city proper are at their beautifully situated summer house at Annisquam Point.

R. Russell Smith and family have the Strangman cottage at Bay View this season.

The Thomas Hartley's of Brookline, will not be at Annisquam this season, but will shortly sail for Europe.

Mrs. J. Bertram Williams and family of Channing place, Cambridge, are at Hermit Ledge cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Dennison of Newton Centre, are occupying their summer cottage, Revere street.

Com. H. H. Wiggin and family of Brookline, are at their summer home, Annisquam Point.

Mrs. Ellerton Dorr of Boston, who last season had the Cox cottage, has taken the house on Norwood's Heights occupied last season by Mrs. Richardson.

Lewis Hawkins and family of Providence, are among the cottage colony who have arrived for the season.

S. Henry Hooper and family of Boston, will, as for some seasons past, make their home at one of the hotels.

Hollis French and family of Mt. Vernon street, Boston, are again at their summer home, Squam Rock road.

"The Ledges" will be again occupied by Henry A. Wise-Wood and family of New York.

Dr. and Mrs. John W. Achorn are at their summer home, Norwood's Heights.

Prof. and Mrs. Charles F. Bradley of Mt. Vernon street, Boston, have opened their Bayberry Ledge cottage for the season.

George L. Huntress and family of Winchester, have the Pulcifer homestead for the season.

Ralph T. Hale and family of Winchester, have Shady Nook cottage, Arlington street, for the season.

Oliver E. Williams and family are at The Hermitage for the season.

Prof. Charles L. Norton and family of Chestnut street, Boston, are occupying the cottage on Norwood's Heights erected for them two years ago.

Mrs. Lelia Webster is at the Norwood homestead for the season.

O. L. Stevens and family of Cambridge, have leased the Fisher cottage for the season.

List of arrivals at Wonasquam Lodge: Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Raymond, Miss Jessie Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. ickly, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Adams, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Tolmi and family, Montreal; Mrs. R. McCall White, Miss Murial P. White, D'Orsay White, Indianapolis; Mrs. Wells Lathrop, Mrs. W. E. Holmes, Springfield; Mr. Kenichi Takela, Cambridge; Dr. and Mrs. Claude W. Beebe, Miss Adela Beebe, Spencer Beebe, Claude Beebe, Miss Cora Simmons, Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Kapplemann, Milwaukee; Mrs. S. SARGENT—McKEAN

Engagement of Socially Prominent Representatives of Old New England Families

Announcement was made Tuesday of the engagement of Miss Margaret Williams Sargent, daughter of Mrs. Francis W. Sargent (Jane W. Hunnewell) of 40 Hereford street and Wellesley, and of the late Mr. Sargent, to Quincy A. Shaw McKean, of Boston and Prides Crossing, one of the two sons of Mrs. Malcolm Graeme Haughton of 13 Commonwealth avenue and Prides. She was formerly Miss Marian Shaw, before her first marriage to Henry Pratt McKean of Philadelphia.

Miss Sargent, who has always been popular among her intimates, has been the guest of Mrs. Haughton at Prides. The announcement of her engagement is of widespread interest because of the social prominence of both families. Miss Sargent is a sister of Mrs. Cheever (Jane Wells Sargent) wife of Dr. David C. Cheever, of 193 Marlboro street, and her brothers are Henry Jackson Sargent, Harvard, 1912, and Daniel Sargent, Harvard, 1913. The last-named was married late last month in Lausanne, Switzerland, to Miss Louise Coolidge, daughter of J. Templeman Coolidge of Beacon street. Miss Sargent's father died about last January.

Mr. McKean is a Harvard man, class of 1913, and is a member of the Somerset Club, Tennis and Racquet Club and the Boston Athletic Association. He is brother of Henry Pratt McKean, Jr., of Beverly Farms, Harvard, 1913, who married Miss Elizabeth P. Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lee. Her sister, Miss Margery Lee, became the wife of Francis W. Sargent, Jr., who died in June of last year and who was the brother of Miss Sargent.

"But," protested Peggy, "it's false pretences. We haven't got a blue and white kitchen. Our's is a dingy grey."

"That," said I, now thoroughly aroused, "is a mere detail to which I will attend at once. If you will only co-operate and not ask idle questions. Just give me three days trial."

"Right-o," said Peggy, "go as far as you like! If you can get a cook in three days I suppose the risk of letting you have your own way is worth it."

That was Wednesday evening. I immediately sent the above ad in to The CAPE ANN SHORE. If my idea proved to be sea-going, we were due to have our first answers by Saturday evening and that only left us 2½ days in which to produce the blue and white kitchen specified.

It was a case for Paint plus Action. Now, the only brand of paint I know about, comes done up in tubes and is designed to proceed from palette to picture—the kind I ordered in whole rainbow sets from the Devoe & Reynolds after reading a bully book called "Painting and the Personal Equation" by Charles Woodbury. A lot of us read this at college and it made the painting game look so worth while that we all decided we'd just try it a bit this summer.

But house paints are out of my sphere, and I had to ask Peggy whom she considered a good speedy painter in Gloucester. She looked it up in The CAPE ANN SHORE (her habit, when in doubt) and found that Steele and Abbot advertise "Our work is done promptly and well."

So I rustled right down there and saw Steele and Abbott's head man who is a delightful chap and he helped me pick out a spiffy blue marked "Robins Egg." He then sent me a couple of good painters—right on the mark—and by Saturday noon, she had the blue-and-whitest kitchen ever seen on Cape Ann.

The rest went according to schedule:—
Sat. Eve. 2 cooks phoned.

Sun. Morn. 2 more phoned.

and thereafter 2 per day, making a total of 11.

We engaged the third one who applied because she looked like the real thing—the kind they used to have before the war. Peggy says she hopes this one will last forever—She's such a dear and the blue and white kitchen is so becoming to her.

On Monday, Aunt Lida came home and joined in the general rejoicing. So you see, in some cases the spice of life consists in palatable seasoning rather than variety. And tho I don't wish to seem to be throwing myself any kitchen bouquets—still I may claim to have discovered this formula:—The way to catch a new cook is to advertise a new frame.

(Signed) JAMES I. WRIGHT.

Now I will leave it to any Aunt and Sister—, would they like their inmost household words published in this unconcealed manner?

Peggy and her Aunt Lida thought Jimmy might at least have left their names out of the story.—Jimmy says it wouldn't then be such a human document. But a little mystery couldn't have hurt it any. Who ever saw a document that wasn't full of mystery? Look at contracts and things—if you can understand them, you can just suspect they're not legal!

Anyhow, Peggy and I have made up our minds that the next time we go shopping in Magnolia, we take Jimmy along with us; then we know he's out of mischief.

PERFECT YACHTING DAYS

Squam Regattas Developed Clever Sailors

Last Saturday afternoon was a perfect one for yachting, there being a moderate southerly breeze and a smooth sea. Ten of the Bird class maneuvered for the start, all the fleet getting away on practically even terms, with the wind dead astern. About half-way to the Lighthouse the Curlew drew out ahead and rounded the channel buoy first, maintaining the lead on the reach to Plum Cove, Osprey being second boat with the Auk third.

On the broad reach to Essex the Curlew establishing her lead, rounding the outward buoy first, the Auk only 10 seconds behind, with the Osprey third boat. Coming about on the windward work, the Curlew, Auk and Tern stood inshore.

The Auk worked into the lead and to weather early and rounded the channel buoy first, Jack Hooper in the Tern pressing hard in second place, the Mavis slipping into third place, finishing in that order.

It was a big day for the young sailors of the House of Stevens, the son and daughter of Brooks Stevens, of Lowell and Bay View, each showing keen yachting acumen, coming in first and second in the Cat class after a hard fought race.

Fred Hawkins, in the Cat-chup, got the best of the start in this squadron and kept the lead around the course until coming home, falling down on the windward work. He kept off into the bay, followed by all except Ames Stevens in the Puss-in-Boots and Harriet Stevens in the Catling.

These proved that their training in the yachting game is deep grounded. Being the sternmost boats, their play was not to follow the leader, but to split tacks. This they did, coming about in shore and rounding the channel buoy on one long hitch. The leaders, handicapped by the tide, overstood the bar and were forced to make an extra hitch in order to get by that reef of sand. In the meantime the Stevens flotilla were well on their way to the finish line. The summary:

SUNDAY AFTERNOON RACING

A steady breeze from the southwest Sunday afternoon, with bellying sails all the way, afforded another fine yachting day to the yachting fraternity of Annisquam.

To round out the pleasure of the day one of the closest contested races in recent years resulted, full of excitement from start to finish and was followed through its varying phases by a large gallery on the shore.

In the Bird class Russell Smith nosed out another win with the Auk.

The Bird boats got away on practically even terms. It was a run down to the channel buoy, the Tern, Jack Hooper, being in the lead. Shortly after rounding his peak halyards parted and he was obliged to heave to for repairs. He then continued but was out of luck, for half way across on the reach to Essex the halyards again gave way and before they were repaired he was far astern.

The boats were closely bunched all the way across and there was no open water separating them at any stage of the game. At the Essex buoy honors were easy, for the fleet turned within a minute, first to last boat. They kept about the same positions on the reach cross to the outer buoy.

It was a dead muzzle from that point to the finish line, the Auk being in the lead, with the Jay, Coot and Mavis following in close order. On the windward leg the Mavis worked through the fleet into first position and took the lead when half way to the lighthouse closely pressed by the Auk. In the river, however, Russell Smith proved to be a clever skipper and in the short hitches which followed to the finish jockeyed his boat cross the line four seconds in the lead.

In the cat class, Puss-in-Boots and Meow had the best of the start. Rounding the Channel buoy, Puss in Boots fouled the mark but kept on leading on the broad reach to Essex, with the Meow a close second.

It was a beat home. Wesley Pear did good work when the two divisions came together at the channel buoy. Puss in Boots was still in the lead, but the Copycat was right after her and succeeded in passing the Stevens boat and going into first place, the latter finishing second, her skipper withdrawing on account of the foul at the channel buoy, thereby advancing the field a notch. DANIEL LOW & COMPANY

Invites You to Historic Salem

WLD Salem with its stately houses, old fashioned gardens, and its wealth of other Colonial charms offers you a hearty welcome.

OUR Retail Store is located in Town House Square in the very heart of Salem, where once stood the Town Pump made famous by Hawthorne. Nearby are many of the points of historic interest.

WHETHER your stay on the North Shore is for a day, a week, or for all summer, we know you can spend part of your time pleasantly and profitably in our Store.

YOU will find it a place to delight your heart, with its spirit of hospitality and its wide variety of interesting and unusual wares—at the most unexpectedly moderate prices.

WE want you to consider this a personal invitation to visit our Store as often as you have the desire, and to make it your headquarters when shopping or sight-seeing in Salem. Come in and look around in a leisurely fashion; our clerks are expected to serve you, but not to disturb you in the least if you wish merely to look around or to meet a friend or wait for a car. Our Store is a Salem institution, dedicated to your service.
